Report on the Eastern Caribbean Central Bank Seminar
on Price Statistics

May 6-16, 1985

Introduction

The Eastern Caribbean Central Bank (ECCB), with the assistance of the Bureau of Statistics and the IMF Institute, conducted a seminar on price statistics in St. Kitts over a two-week period. Fund assistance was rendered through the provision of two staff members of the Bureau of Statistics and a consultant to serve as lecturers. The Fund representatives were Messrs. C. A. Patel and J. V. Carter, while Mr. S. Natarajan of the Government of India served as a consultant on household expenditure surveys. The ECCB selected the 19 participants from its 7 member countries, the Economic Affairs Secretariat of the Organization of Eastern Caribbean States (OECS), and the ECCB. The countries represented were Antigua and Barbuda, Dominica, Grenada, Montserrat, St. Christopher and Nevis, St. Lucia, and St. Vincent and the Grenadines (Attachment I). The seminar was intended to provide a forum for participants to discuss issues and problems relating to price statistics in their countries and to lay the foundation for a uniform basis and methodology for the compilation of price statistics in the OECS region. The seminar was inaugurated by Mr. Cecil Jacobs, Governor of the ECCB. Financial assistance for the travel and accommodation costs of the participants was provided by the United States Agency for International Development.

Organization of the seminar

The scope and subject matter of the seminar were similar to those presented at a Fund-supported seminar on price statistics held in Dakar in June 1981 in cooperation with the Banque Centrale des Etats de l'Afrique de l'Ouest (BCEAO), although the material was tailored to the circumstances of the East Caribbean region. In addition to the opening and closing sessions, 18 lectures and practical exercises were presented and visits made to the Statistical Office and the Customs Office of St. Christopher and Nevis (Attachment II). All lectures were based on papers prepared for the seminar by the Fund staff and the consultant.

Eight lectures on consumer price indices were conducted by the Fund staff and the consultant, covering household expenditure survey methodologies, price data collection, and index number construction. Six sessions were devoted to a review of country practices, the resolution of practical exercises on imputations, seasonal items and price collection, and the compilation of world and area averages of price indices. In dealing with the last topic, a special index for the East Caribbean was constructed utilizing the methodology developed in the Bureau of Statistics for the calculation of world and area averages of price indices. Lastly, four sessions were devoted to wholesale price indices, trade indices, the use of price statistics in economic analysis, and guidelines on the dissemination of price statistics. For the session on trade indices, the lecture by the Fund staff was complemented by a paper presented by the Chief Statistician for Dominica.

The seminar was well organized, with excellent collaboration being received from the staff of the ECCB. The seminar benefited from the range of experience of the participants, and there were fruitful discussions on the differing problems of the seven countries. The seminar achieved its objectives as was widely recognized by the participants at the closing session. It is expected that as a result of the seminar, the coverage, quality, and currentness of price statistics provided to the Fund in the future will be improved. The seminar also helped to form a closer working relationship between the Fund, the ECCB, and its member countries.

The Fund's contribution to the seminar was greatly appreciated by the ECCB. Certificates of attendance were presented to the participants by the Deputy Governor of the ECCB, during the closing session on May 16.
