CONFIDENTIAL

INTERNATIONAL MONETARY FUND

Rwanda--Exchange System

Prepared by the African Department and the Exchange and Trade Relations Department

(In consultation with the Legal Department)

Approved by Oumar B. Makalou and W.A. Beveridge

March 29, 1983

In the attached communication dated March 18, 1983, the National Bank of Rwanda has informed the Fund that the Government of Rwanda decided to introduce an advance import deposit requirement scheme effective from March 1, 1983. Under the scheme, purchases of foreign exchange will be subject to the requirement of a noninterest-bearing deposit equivalent to 100 per cent (in case of the appendix List I) or 50 per cent (in case of the appendix List II) of the c. & f. value of the import. The deposits are required to be lodged at the National Bank of Rwanda for the interval between the validation of the import license and customs clearance, a period of up to approximately nine months.

Given present interest rates in Rwanda, the 100 per cent deposit requirement would involve an implied spread of up to 7 per cent, and the 50 per cent deposit an implied spread of up to 3.5 per cent in the selling exchange rates, and would give rise to multiple currency practices subject to Fund jurisdiction under Article VIII, Section 3.

In its communication, the Government of Rwanda states that the measure has been introduced to contain imports of luxury goods, and thereby to promote balance of payments adjustment. The staff is of the view that introduction of the advance deposit requirement system is likely to provide a temporary reinforcement to the balance of payments. Nevertheless, the objectives of the temporary measure would be better served by a sustained strengthening of the general policy actions noted in the Staff Report for the 1983 Article IV Consultation with Rwanda (SM/83/31, 2/8/83). These actions would include appropriate pricing policies--including producer pricing policies and exchange rate action--and tighter demand management policies, rather than a measure that is directed specifically against imports. In the light of these considerations, approval by the Executive Board of the multiple currency practice is not recommended.
