I wish to inform you that, with effect from Wednesday, February 22, the Bank of Italy has increased the discount rate by  $\frac{3}{4}$  of 1 percentage point, from 7.50 to 8.25 percent. The rate applied to fixed-term advances is increased from 8.50 to 9.75 percent.

The increase is aimed at curbing inflation and countering the deterioration of inflationary expectations. It is in line with the conditions prevailing in the money market.
