Report on the Seminar on Financial Programming and Policy

Jakarta, Indonesia

November 17-28, 1986

The IMF Institute, in collaboration with the Asian Department, conducted a Seminar on Financial Programming and Policy in Indonesia from November 17-28, 1986. The seminar was part of the Institute's external training program, which supplements the courses the Institute offers at Fund headquarters. In this particular case, Bank Indonesia hosted the seminar, which was opened by Mr. T. M. Zahirsyah, member of the Board of Managing Directors and Acting Governor. The staff mission consisted of Messrs. U Tun Wai (Head--INS), Naranhkiri Tith (INS), and Mario Hernandez (INS). Mr. Richard Hides, Fund resident representative in Indonesia, also collaborated. The authorities were responsible for the selection of the participants, all of whom were government officials or representatives of state banks. The list of participants is shown in Attachment I.

The topics for the seminar were chosen jointly by the authorities of Indonesia and the Institute in consultation with the Asian Department. An annotated list of topics is shown in Attachment II. The program included two lectures on the Fund; five lectures and five workshops on financial programming; and four lectures and two workshops on policy issues.

The mission members presented all lectures on the Fund and on financial programming, and monitored all workshops on financial programming. After each such presentation, participants were divided into two discussion groups, and each session concluded with reports from the various groups and a general discussion. In the second week of the program, the Fund team presented a paper on "Tax Reform in Indonesia and Its Impact on Stabilization and Growth" and monitored two workshops on "Exchange Rates" and "Interest Rates." Two other papers on "Indonesia's Trade Policy: Problems and Options" and on "Interest Rate After the Financial Deregulation in Indonesia: Some Key Policy Issues" were presented by the Indonesian officials, and one on "Indonesia's Exchange Rate System" by the Fund resident representative. Most of the documents prepared and selected for the seminar were distributed in advance, and supplementary materials were made available during the seminar (Attachment III).

During the closing session, which was chaired by Mr. Sujitno Siswowidagdo, Managing Director of Bank Indonesia, the Indonesian authorities warmly expressed their appreciation to the Institute for providing this technical assistance.

INTERNATIONAL MONETARY FUND

IMF INSTITUTE

Seminar on Financial Programming and Policy

Jakarta, Indonesia

November 17-28, 1986

List of Topics

I. International Monetary Fund

1. Organization and Activities of the Fund
2. Use of Fund Resources

(These two sessions place financial programming, as practiced by the Fund staff, in an institutional context; the sessions outline the structure of the Fund and review its code of conduct, explain the financial facilities available to member countries, and discuss the conditionality provisions that rule access to such facilities.)

II. Financial Programming Techniques

1. The Financial Sector
2. The Public Sector
3. The External Sector

(These sessions discuss the data base required for, and analytical concepts used in financial programming; and review forecasting techniques used to project macroeconomic aggregates in each sector. Workshops are used to pursue practical applications.)

4. An Overview

(In this session, all sectors are brought together into a coherent program. The session shows how accounts interlock, and discusses the use of policy targets and instruments.)

III. Financial Policy Issues

1. Interest Rate Policy in Indonesia

(This session explores the nature and impact of the recent financial reform in Indonesia aimed at enhancing financial intermediation, and analyzes the reasons for the persistence of high real interest rates. Methodological aspects of this topic are covered in a separate workshop session.)

2. Tax Policy in Indonesia

(This session explores the nature of the recent tax reform, not only from the point of view of its contribution to raising revenue but also from the point of view of its impact on economic growth.)

3. Trade Policy in Indonesia

(This session explores the recent trends in trade and industrial policy, focusing on their effects on the competitiveness and the growth of non-oil exports.)

4. Exchange Rate Policy in Indonesia

(This session explores the recent experience of Indonesia in handling two aspects of exchange rate policy: choice of exchange rate regime and definition of equilibrium exchange rate. Methodological aspects of the calculation of the real effective exchange rate for Indonesia are covered in a separate workshop session.)
